

A Waterloo Boy Does Your Work the Way You Want it Done

The Waterloo Boy gives you service that pays most—the service you want. It does your work the way you want it done.

Its twin-cylinder engine gives you 12 H. P. at the drawbar, and 25 H. P. on the belt. It burns kerosene, and by means of a patented manifold conveys every drop of this low-priced fuel into rugged, positive power.

A pump, fan, and radiator cooling system holds the engine at the proper temperature for correct lubrication, and maintains enough heat to insure complete combustion. The radiator holds thirteen gallons. You don't have to stop in the field every few hours on a hot day and fill it. That's real service.

Accessibility and simplicity of construction make the Waterloo Boy a real farmer's tractor. Two-cylinder design permits large, rugged parts, also fewer parts. Fewer parts make it easy to understand. It's no trick to care for a Waterloo Boy.

A draw bar shift lever, which enables you to shift the hitch either to the right or left of center, is a great convenience when plowing on hillsides or in finishing lands. Your plows take full cut at all times.

The Waterloo Boy is especially strong and rugged in its construction. It stands up under the most difficult and trying conditions of your farm work. Its various parts are designed to meet every possible strain.

The Waterloo Boy Engine runs without vibration. Its well-balanced weight provides proper traction in soft ground. Hyatt Roller Bearings conserve power by reducing friction.

You have to see the Waterloo Boy to fully appreciate it. Come in and we will show you and tell you why the Waterloo Boy is the right tractor for your farm.

MINISTER SAYS WOMEN SHOULD LOWER SKIRTS

Calls Practice Shameful and Sees Danger to Young Girls in Fashion

Women who dress to display the curves and forms of their bodies were roundly scored by the Rev. E. B. Hatcher, news editor of the Western Recorder, at the Deer Park Baptist Church in a talk on "the present growing scandal of woman's indecency in dress."

"A wave of careless, loose dressing is sweeping the country today," the Rev. Mr. Hatcher exclaimed. "Women are placing their physical attractions on a plane higher than that which they place their souls. They are giving prominence to their bodies; they are shamelessly exalting them in public."

The Rev. Mr. Hatcher's text was from Timothy: "I desire that women adorn themselves in modest apparel with shamefacedness and sobriety." In his sermon he quoted from the Scriptures that the prophet Isaiah, pointed out the immodesty in feminine apparel prior to the fall of Jerusalem.

"In the streets," the Rev. Mr. Hatcher said, "we find that there is a lowering of the standards of womanly dress. In all Christian lands, the tendency of women to exhibit their bodies always has been regarded as a tendency toward immodesty. Yet we find this to be the case in the streets, on the trains and wherever there is a public gathering."

The speaker declared that this tendency is positively startling. It is spreading, too, he pointed out. "Just think of the young slip of a girl who walks along the street dressed in shortened skirt, a peek-a-boo waist, and a low neck blouse. Fear for her. Try to divert her from the path in which she is walking," he admonished.

In the city of Ephesus, where the young preacher, Timothy, lived, there was the same trouble, according to the Rev. Mr. Hatcher. "The Apostle Paul," he said, "urged the women to go against the current and appear in public only in modest apparel, to clothe themselves with a view toward modesty rather than to aim at the pretensions and the spectacular."

The Rev. Mr. Hatcher also denounced the advertisements and illustrations that appear in some of the newspaper and magazines.

"Whenever a woman is concerned in any way," he said, "the advertisement seeks to display her as sensuously as possible. This is to be regretted, for it works on the mind, especially on the mind of the young boy and the young girl who read it."

Asserting that he was not indicting women in general, the Rev. Mr. Hatcher paid tribute to what he called the "bulk of society," the women who dress modestly, who conduct themselves discreetly, who place the beauty of the soul above the beauty of the body.

"Who is to blame?" he asked. "Who is responsible for this regrettable tendency, this excessive exposure of the body? Mothers, I urge you to check your daughters in the paths they are traveling. Girls, I urge you to emphasize the beauty of your intellect and of your soul."

The Rev. Mr. Hatcher explained that his talk was based on observations of the last two or three weeks. He called attention to the careless spirit displayed at dances, theater parties and in automobile riding at night. After the sermon, he said that he had not been to any bathing resorts, but that if the dress there is as immodest as he has been told—why, "conditions are deplorable."

After preaching at the same church next Sunday morning and night, the Rev. Mr. Hatcher will go to Blue Mountain, Miss., to take the pastorate of the Lowrey Memorial Baptist Church.—Courier Journal.

HARTFORD HERALD FORCE ORGANIZES FIRST NEW-PAPERMAN'S CLUB

L. G. Barrett,
Dear Sir:

Your letter of the 18th received. You have made a good start but you can do better. We want the names of every man and woman engaged in newspaper work who favor the election of Cox. This includes printers and every other department of the paper. We have started you off as the first Kentucky club and would appreciate it if you would boost the organization in your vicinity at every opportunity. Send us the additional names as soon as you obtain them.

Very truly yours,
Newspaperman's Cox Club,

"SLUMBERLAND STORIES"

(By Pearl Craddock, Mefferry, Ky.)
The dreadful quarrel that had lasted so long was going on between two vegetables in Mrs. Pilot's garden. It was the Bean and Corn. All morning long, the other vegetables could hear the Bean say, "and if I am not so beautiful as you, I give to the world more than you. See? Upon my vine there are gallons and gallons of nice, fine beans, and you only have three roasting ears upon your stalk. See? What a great difference."

"Oh, that's just your view of it all. I have many and many grades upon my three ears of corn, you see, and it is these grains that make so many fine cattle in this country. Of course you help out when one is in need of something common to eat. But I am set on the table nearly always when company comes and every one likes me for at times I am very hard to get."

"Well, company generally thinks the same of me, and I tell you somebody else who thinks a great deal of me, and that is the little hungry school child. The first thing he calls for is his nice plate of Beans and Corn bread."

"And what does—"

Just then the quarrel was ended for some one was coming along the bean row gathering beans, and some one was coming along the corn row gathering corn.

"Oh! What beautiful beans I never saw half so many on such a little vine."

"Look, John!" exclaimed Mrs. Pilot, "see, this long bean? almost as large as a butter bean. I know, almost, that would bring a prize, it certainly is wonderful."

"Just look at this fine corn. The largest ears of corn I nearly ever saw," said John.

"But it can't beat the Beans any in size."

"No, it can't," said John, "I am thinking of saving this stalk of corn for seed and that vine of Beans for seed and try planting them together next year."

That's just the right idea, John. I have my bucket full of beans, lets go."

"I think two ears of this corn will be enough for us, don't you?"

"Yes, just a plenty."

After the newcomers had left, the bean looked up at the corn with a feeling of delight, and said, "What were you going to say just before they came in?"

"Well, you know you said the first thing the little hungry school child would call for would be his plate of beans and cornbread. What is the cornbread made of?"

"The cornbread contains different things," said the bean.

"But you would have no cornbread unless you had meal, and what is meal made of? ha, ha," said the corn. "I guess we are, after all, on the same equal, don't you?"

Then a soft breeze caused the little bean vine to nod, to tell that it really was.

Fordson Tractors

Ohio county is falling far short of her duty in raising wheat. We should at least raise enough wheat to bread our inhabitants. It is true that occasionally we have a bad season, and a big fall off in acreage and yield is inevitable, but we must not get discouraged. We must double our energies, strengthen our soil and the general average will be satisfactory. Some claim a shortage in labor. That's true, but a FORDSON TRACTOR will easily supply this deficiency and make the growing of a good crop of wheat more certain.

We Are Ready To Demonstrate

on your own farm the superior advantages of this famous farm horse. You can run your tractor all day and part of the night, or all night if you please. You have no idea what you can accomplish with a FORDSON TRACTOR until you try. We have the best tractor on the market. We are prepared to give you the service you need in keeping your tractor going. We have experienced mechanics and operators who know the game, and they are at your service at any time you need them.

Remember, the FORDSON is the best tractor, and remember we have the only real service department in the county on tractors.
